nearly 80 of these men were prescribed much-needed antiretrovirals, yet 27.5 reported selling or trading their medications at some point, and 19.0 reported doing so in the previous year.

in general the larger the local economy, the more it will benefit the other poster is correct about the more common long term effects